"36-24-36" is an insightful feature length documentary film, through the eyes of pre-adolescent girls in Kitimat, that explores the issue of female body image and its correlation with eating disorders.

Ferron girl on a road

Part performance film, part biopic, Ferron: girl on a road traces, the life, the songs, the loves, the heartbreaks, and the pioneering path carved by a true folk legend. Intimate, and sweeping all at once, this film moves beyond "chronicle" and captures in word and deed, the essence of a visionary artist, and the soul of an icon. Wonderfully directed by Gerry Rogers NS filmmaker of My Left Breast. 73min 2009 PG

OLIVER SCHROER - SILENCE AT THE HEART OF THINGS

Director
Eileen
Thalenberg

Silence At The Heart Of Things is a documentary about Oliver Schroer, fiddler extraordinaire. In a career cut short by illness, the Canadian artist recorded and produced more than 100 albums, composed some 1,000 pieces of music and inspired a generation of young musicians! Through his own words, the documentary explores Oliver's music and the unique voice he brought to his instrument, a voice that challenges traditional views of the fiddle. Featuring excerpts from Oliver's last sold-out concert, Silence At The Heart Of Things is a joyful celebration of his life's work. 72min 2009 PG We'll be joined by Toronto director Eileen Thalenberg and Producer Gail MacIntyre in person!

HERE ARE THE NEWS: The life of Miss Edith Josie

Edith Josie, was an Aboriginal elder whose News was the voice Old Crow, Yukon (pop. 300), for more than 50 years. Her column was widely read and loved for it's folksy style and Gwit'chin world view. It won her a Life Magazine feature and numerous visits on air with Peter Gzowski. She was loved for her winning laugh and her dogged work to preserve her language, her people's traditional way of life, language and values.

She died just last January 31, at 88.

Her friend, Cathleen Smith, a non-Aboriginal (although they were "honorary sisters") made this tribute to her friend from a trunkful of gathered media clips, films, photos, clippings and interviews.

Cathleen will be with us for Q&A and is a great raconteur! You'll love both these ladies. 51min Pg
