A classic 1993 comedy by Canadian director Ivan Reitman, starring Kevin Kline in one of his most memorable performances! Shifty White House chief of staff (Frank Langella) hatches a scheme to use a double for the president (Kline) at a public photo opportunity. All's fine, but soon after the president suffers a debilitating stroke,

Dave is pushed to step in full time without even informing the First Lady (Sigourney Weaver). It doesn't take long before the press, the nation and the president's wife realize something is different, in fact much improved. (Makes you think about how this scenario might work in our current situation, eh...) Big laughs, wonderful music score and beautifully filmed. 110 min Pg

Emma Thompson and Pierce Brosnan head up a terrific cast of this fun caper film. A divorced couple plan to win back a huge sum that was corporately stolen in a sly business takeover. They enlist the help of a couple of equally inexperienced old friends to help them with a most unlikely scheme. (and I can't account for the title) "entirely ridiculous, cheerfully daft and very amiable midlife comedy" 95min 2013 Pg

Canyon War covers the tumultuous events of 1858 in British Columbia around Fraser River Gold Rush. Some 30 to 40 thousand gold seekers had flooded into the Fraser Valley clashing with the Native inhabitants, culminating in the Fraser River War in August of that year. Many lives were lost on both sides, in a little-known war that could have escalated. Fortunately peace was finally concluded in Lytton through the diplomacy of Chief Spintlum of the Nlaka'pamux First Nation and Henry Snyder. Through the descendants from this time, Kevin Loring and Dr. Daniel Marshall, this documentary with re-enactments provides a lasting legacy of this event and as they visit the war's battlefields on the Fraser River - from the fight of Boston Bar to the peace at Kumsheen. 46min 2009 Pg
